3. Egenevaluering

Vurdering av undervisningsopplegget i forhold til mål og resultater (emneansvarlig)

Assessment of the teaching plan in relation to goals and results (course coordinator)

In general, the GEO 337 course went quite well in Spring 2021. This was despite the pandemic context, and the various limitations this context imposed upon the format of both the lectures and the seminars.

As per the course evaluation results below, the students were generally happy with both the course content and the assessment format despite these limitations.

Given that the course sessions were held primarily via videoconferencing, it was still possible to fulfill learning objectives related to the student-led organization and facilitation of the student seminars, as well as to use these activities as a means of assisting the students in developing and refining their term paper projects. It was also still possible to complete the oral exams as planned.

5. Oppfølging

Oppfølging av/kommentarer til tidligere evalueringer. Hvordan rapporten følges opp, evt. tiltak eller endringer som er gjort/planlegges gjennomført på bakgrunn av emnerapporten

The GEO 337 course will necessarily change in Spring 2022, given an expected return to physical instruction. This will denote that additional pedagogical approaches will be feasible, particularly with respect to the nature of the lecture and seminar based activities.

In particular, I expect that the return to physical instruction will facilitate the process of seminar group organization and preparation in Spring 2022.

As a result, the course content for Spring 2022 will remain similar:

- 7 lectures
- 7 seminars
- 1 formative essay
- 1 mandatory seminar presentation
- 1 term paper
- 1 oral exam
